

Mini Series part 1

3. WHAT WE LEARN FROM MOUNTAINS

1.

Yes, dear. Trees us the art of giving. They share all that they produce and have.

True! Trees give us many important things; they provide shelter, too.

My teacher says "trees are our best friends".

Mommy explains to the children the sharing and giving nature of trees.

Dear, trees are very patient and strong. They know after every storm comes a sunshine. So, they bear everything heartily.

Mommy, how do the trees bear all seasons and weathering and still stand upright?

Mommy encourages patience and strength in the children.

2.

3.

No, dear. Unlike us, trees do not complain or feel jealous. Each tree has a specific role to play. So, they feel grateful with what they have.

Mommy, trees without fruits must be jealous of other trees laden with fruits, as they are hardly wanted. Isn't it?

Mommy talks about the content nature of trees.

4.

Inayat, trees are our lifeline. The world would end without them. Do you think they help you learn something?

Certainly, Mommy. I will try to be a patient, strong, and kind person, just like a tree.

Inayat understands the lesson we get from a tree.
